Author Talk with Karen Harris Tully: The Faarian Chronicles - Extinction

Thursday, March 15
5:30 - 6:30 p.m.
for adults & teens

Raymond Timberland Library

Enjoy coffee and snacks while local author Karen Harris Tully reads excerpts from her latest book "The Faarian Chronicles: Extinction" (Release: March 13) and answers questions about publishing and writing.

About the author: Karen Harris Tully creates elaborate worlds for her novels aided by her bachelor's in political science and economics. She's the author of The Faarian Chronicles: "Exile", "Inheritance", and the brand new "Extinction".

After growing up in the snowy mountains of Colorado, Karen experienced the traffic nightmare of Seattle before accidentally realizing she's a small-town girl. She happily lives in Raymond, Washington.

THE FAARIAN CHRONICLES

EMBRACE THE ALIEN WITHIN.

Storyline sneak peak:

Sunny Price may be staying on her mother's home planet Macawi, but she wants the same thing as every other teen: to be normal (what's that again?), to spend time with her boyfriend, John, and to keep her family safe. But the "short" stay on her mother's home planet has gone from disastrous to deadly, with an Ancient alien known as Tiamat haunting her dreams, an evil-scientist dogging her every step, and a horde of zombies knocking down the door. Sunny is starting to think that she may not live to see Earth again.

As Tiamat begins a campaign to rid Macawi of the parasite known as humans, Sunny has to find a way to protect her friends and the new family she's come to love. In order to save them, and the lives of every human on Macawi, Sunny must weigh their extinction against her own sacrifice and frightening transformation. Can she embrace the hero within?
